Privacy at ADP

Effective Date: May 8, 2018

Last Updated: March 21, 2024

As a Human Capital Management (HCM) provider, ADP processes a vast amount of personal data. We process the personal data of our Clients' employees on behalf of our Clients, and of our business contacts. In order to provide the highest level of data protection, ADP has adopted Binding Corporate Rules (BCR) for processing Client employee data and business contact data. In addition, ADP has implemented BCR for processing personal data of ADP Associates. These BCRs serve as the basis for our Global Privacy Program. We have implemented a Global Privacy Policy that is applicable to all ADP Associates worldwide, enabling us to comply with the commitments we've made in our BCRs.

ADP's Global Chief Privacy Officer is charged with leading and overseeing ADP's Global Privacy Programs, along with the members of the global privacy team. The global privacy team may be contacted at privacy@adp.com.

We invite you to explore this webpage and learn more about Privacy at ADP, including understanding the steps that we've taken to protect personal data globally. Within this webpage, you may find our Privacy Statements, overview of our BCRs, and of our Privacy Program, as well as brochures and other privacy-related materials.

This webpage is complementary to our other Privacy at ADP webpage that you can find at https://www.adp.com/about-adp/data-privacy.aspx.
